

OPTIMIZED PROCESSORS AND INSTRUCTION ALIGNMENT

Abstract of the Disclosure

5 Methods and apparatus are provided for optimizing a processor core.
Common processor subcircuitry is used to perform calculations for various types of instructions, including branch and non-branch instructions. Increasing the commonality of calculations across different instruction types allows branch instructions to jump to byte aligned memory address even if supported instructions 10 are multi-byte or word aligned.